Credit 101, 102 and Credit 103 are interactive and invite the class to give real world examples of the credit department environment. In each class, NACM Connect provides a textbook for each student to take back to the office and use as a reference guide.

The intention of these courses is to teach students about credit and prepare them for the workplace. These classes also set the stage for continuing education in future seminars and Institute of Credit classes, in which students prepare to earn their professional designations.

Credit 101 is a basic-level orientation program that introduces newcomers to the multifaceted field of credit management. This session examines the credit function, the procedures and tasks performed in a typical credit department and how those procedures impact an entire organization.

CURRICULUM

- The credit department function
- Credit investigation
- Credit policy
- The legal forms of business
- Basic bankruptcy
- Sales/credit relationship
- NACM Connect Education and the Institute of Credit

Credit 102 is an intermediate-level program designed for inquisitive credit personnel who wish to exceed the basics of credit management. This professional educational program examines the underlying knowledge required to successfully function and advance in today's ever-changing credit department.

CURRICULUM

- Legal issues and out-of-court settlements
- Negotiable instruments
- Bankruptcy
- Financial statements
- NACM Education and what it can do for you

Credit 103 is designed for mid-level credit professionals who would like to learn where they fit into the corporate structure and give them tools, which are not widely talked about and creating a positive impact on the mission of their credit department. This course will include scenarios that will teach students ways to use the tools presented in the class.

CURRICULUM

- The role of the credit department within an organization
- An ethical look at the credit department
- Choosing professional vendors
- Putting the pieces together, how to use the tools
- The importance of education and obtaining your certification
